PAINFUL CASUALTY-DEATH OF PROFESSOR MILES J. FLETCHER, SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION .- We are called upon to announce the sudden demise, by one of the most painful casualties, of Professor Miles J. Fletcher, Super intendent of Public Instruction of Indiana. In company with Governor Morton, (by whom he was summoned to go.) Adjutant General Noble and Brigade Surgeon, Dr. Bobbs, Prof. Fletcher left the city or Saturday night by the Terre Haute Railroad for Pittsburg Landing. The errand of this party was the humane one of looking after Indiana soldiers who might fall wounded in the impending battle at Corinth. They progressed safely on their journey until, near Sullivan, on the Evansville and Crawfordsville Railroad, the locomotive came in contact with a freight car switched off but not sufficiently clear of the main track. The shock of the train causel Professor Fletcher to look out of the window, when instantly his head struck the car, fracturing his skull, and he died immediately.

Professor Fletcher was a native of Indianapolis, a son of Calvin Fletcher, Esq., one of the oldest and most respectable of our citizens. He was born in a log cabin where Blake's Block now stands on Washington street. In early life he had every advantage of education. He was a graduate of Brown's University, Rhode Island. Just before he graduated he was elected to and accepted the Professorship of belle-lettres and history in the Asbury University, Greencastle. He remained in that position two years, when he studied law at the law school of Cambridge University. Upon the completion of his law course he resumed his Professorship at Asbury University. In 1860 he was nominated by the Republican party didate for Superintendent of Public Instruction. and elected. The duties of this office he performed acceptably to the State at large up to the time of his death. Professor Fletcher was about thirty-three years of age, and leaves a wife and two children, a large circle of immediate relatives. and friends and acquaintances throughout the State who admired and respected him, to mourn his untimely loss.

Professor Flecther possessed great energy of gentleman-a pleasant-companion in our limited ntercourse with him, since his late residence here, we found him free from bigotry, socially, morally and politically. He left here on Saturday night, full of life, buoyant with hope, on a mission of mercy. In a few hours after comes the sad message that he is cut off, without a moment's warning, in the noon day of life and usefulness. How true is it that we know not what a day, even an hour, may bring forth. Such is life. Professor Fletcher had several times visited our soldiers, East and West, by request of the away from him in piece meals. The market this week shows some improvement in prices, equal to 25c per cwt. in nearly all the desirable grades. The sales opened on Monday with great activity, and the larger part of the business was done on that day. Tuesday was less active, and to-day there were but very few cattle remaining sold at $8 50.

It will be noticed that Illinois furnished four fifths of the cattle offered; they were generally well-fed steers, ranging at 750@800 lbs.

The greater part of the offerings this week were owned by brokers who had hard work to realize profits equal to the usual commission.

The Government bought 400 head of good cattle, to be shipped southward, and 100 head were sent to Connecticut.
